HOTEL

De Durgerdam

Durgerdam, Netherlands

Arriving at this lakeside hideout, set amid tall grasses and clapboard cottages, fishing boats and weather-beaten boardwalks, you'd never believe you were only a 15-minute drive from Amsterdam. Housed in a historic, whitewashed timber building that was once an inn for sailors and fisherman, De Durgerdam will offer 14 bedrooms, a snug library, bar, restaurant and waterfront terrace. Headed up by Aedes - the Amsterdam-based group behind the development of Soho House Amsterdam and The Hoxton - the hotel will be packed with thoughtful design details such as headboards made from tree trunks and the sort of rainfall showers that make you go in for a second round of shampoo. The beating heart of the property will be restaurant De Mark, a project conceived by two award-winning chefs, which will serve menus filled with fresh, locally sourced ingredients.
